Dear Mr. Pavsner,

Something not connected with litigation has just come up and requires me to go to New York.

I do not now know exactly when it can be. I hope to make it this coming week. If I can, I do not think it can be before Thursday.

When I am there, I will phone to see if there is anything about which you would like to see me.

It is not impossible that the matter of the fees Bair agrees should not have been charged against me will have been resolved or that I may be able to accomplish this at that time. The problem here is not Dell but Sage, a magazine. After writing you I did hear from him.

If I get there and you would like to see me but cannot that day, I will be prepared to stay over.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg
